

Hungarian Electrographic Art Association (HEAA) Address: 1116 Budapest, Adony u. 8
V/24, Hungary

Background

d: Founded in August 17 2001, at the Bartók 32 Gallery, Budapest, the Society of Hungarian Electrography is made up of a group of artists and writers whose domain of creative activity belongs to the field of electrography (electrographic art).
Founde

By electrography (electrographic art) we mean those works of art, which are being realised through electronic means – by photocopy machine, computer or telefax - in such a way that the creation of the image is based on the unique characteristics of the tool, incomparable to the other technical facilities of the graphic art, that is to say, the role of technique transcends the boundaries of the role of the transmitter –reproducer or that of multiplier.

Aims:

- the establishment of the professional forum of the eletrography
- the widest possible presentation and popularisation of the genre
- creation of opportunities for presentation and operation for those working in the genre
- support of workshop activities, facilitation of the creation of new values

Special activities:

- organises exhibitions at home as well as abroad
- organises artistic camps, invites applications
- represents its members at professional and public forums
- initiates and maintains contacts with similar domestic and foreign artists, curators and organisations

- publishes catalogues, albums, CD-ROMs, sets up Internet database
- sets up and manages archive and helps processing the data scientifically
- submits applications, looks for sponsors and supporters
- does economic activities only with secondary character
